

Business valuation is a process and a set of procedures used to estimate the economic value of an owner's interest in a business as the financial statements are not sufficient to extract such an information. Valuation is used by financial market participants to determine the price they are willing to pay or receive to effect a sale of a business (often the law imposes such evaluations), to resolve disputes related to estate and gift taxation, divorce litigation, allocate business purchase price among business assets, establish a formula for estimating the value of partners' ownership interest for buy-sell agreements, mergers, demergers, liquidations, company transformations.

Often such evaluations take the form of an official appraisal, other times take the form of a business consultancy.
